NOBILE STARTS AIR TOUR OF POLAR ZONES

LEFT KINGS BAY ON EXPLORATION FLIGHT OF AREA

TRIP IS TO BE FIRST OF A SERIES
BY ITALIAN COM-MANDER

ARCTIC MISTS OF JUNE SOUGHT TO BE AVOIDED BY AN EARLY START

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 11.—(UP)—General Umberto Nobile started his air tour of the North Polar zones in the dirigible Italia at 6 A. M. today.

He had not decided definitely on which of three trips to take but it was believed he would go towards Leninland.

The flight today was to be the first of a series of exploration tours over the North Polar area.

The Italia carried a crew of eight.

Nobile's desire to begin his explorations as soon as possible was due to the fact that arctic mists would hamper the work after the first days of June.

One of the trips planned by Nobile will take him to Lenin Island, another would take him direct to the pole while a third would mean a circling of the Polar area.

Nobile had arranged to land a number of Italian chasseurs at the North Pole and leave them there for several days to make meteorological observations, but the chasseurs went on strike today, packed up and left for Oslo on the Norwegian government ship Hobby.

For a time it was thought the desertion of the chasseurs would interfere with Nobile's plans, but he ignored the incident.

Nobile is understood to be planning a residence at Kings Bay and has arranged for the purchase of 6,000 square meters of land.

Major Vallini, now at Vadsoe, was instructed by Nobile today to prepare for the eventual arrival of the Italia there, which the general considers a secondary base.

Oslo, May 11.—A King's Bay dispatch today reported that the dirigible Italia had returned to Kings Bay owing to minor technical difficulties, but had left again for the Polar region at 7:45 A. M. The report was unconfirmed.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 11.—A race for Lenin's Land, up by the North Pole, was on today between Gen. Umberto Nobile's dirigible Italia and a Russian expedition that was believed to have set out from the Taimir Peninsula.

Nobile started at 6 A. M. on what he expected would be a 40-hour flight to Lenin's Land.

It was understood he accelerated his start because of the report that the Russian expedition had started.

After the start, it was confirmed by members of the Italia's ground force that Nobile intended to go to Lenin's Land, drop two or three observers, and return for them later.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 11.—The Italian Polar dirigible Italia returned to King Bay at 2 P. M. today after starting a race toward Lenin's Land against a Russian expedition.

Bad weather and fogs caused the abandonment of what was to have been a 40-hour flight.

TWO SPANISH FLIERS DELAYED ON LONG DISTANCE FLIGHT

Seville, Spain, May 11.—(UP)—Misfortune again prevented Captains Jimenez and Iglesias from starting on their long distance flight today as their airplane rolled off the runway in a take-off attempt. The plane was damaged slightly and the start postponed 24 hours. Neither of the fliers was hurt. Havana is their goal.

DETACHING PART OF RURAL SCHOOL TERRITORY

St. Paul, May 11.—(UP)—A county board may, if it sees fit, detach part of its territory from one school district, the state supreme court ruled today. The case was that of school district No. 37 against the county board of Yellow Medicine county. The county court ruled the county board was within its rights in moving the land from No. 37 to district No. 42, in which his children attended school. The high court upheld the decision.

ROCKEFELLER SILENT IN FACE OF DEVELOPMENTS

TEMPEST STIRRED BY HIS DEMAND FOR STEWART RESIGNATION

SEEKS TO OUST LATTER FROM BOARD CHAIRMANSHIP OF OIL COMPANY

Washington, May 11.—(UP)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was silent today in the face of three new developments in the tempest stirred by his demand for the resignation of Robert W. Stewart from the chairmanship of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

The U. S. chamber adopted a resolution calling on stockholders to act to purge corporations of those who resort to unclean and unworthy practices.

Another development, the Chicago statement of Stewart that Rockefeller's request would be given careful consideration, but without intimating whether the Indiana Standard stockholders would be called for a "vote of confidence" meeting, as anticipated by Rockefeller, was communicated to Rockefeller by the United Press. But Rockefeller said he had nothing to say at this time.

Meanwhile the District of Columbia grand jury considered evidence of Stewart's allegedly conflicting testimony concerning the Continental Trading Company oil deal, placed before it yesterday by U. S. Attorney Leo Rover and Chairman Nye of the senate Teapot Dome committee. The evidence was submitted to see if a perjury indictment against Stewart was justified, and a decision of the jury is expected within a few days.

HIGHWAYS RECOVER FROM RECENT RAINS

St. Paul, May 11.—(UP)—Minnesota highways have generally recovered from the effects of the rains of last week, and most of the routes are listed as good in the weekly condition report issued today by the state highway department. Only a few short stretches are said to be poor, and all are passable. The department warned, however, that some routes which offer good going for ordinary vehicles are not solid enough for heavy trucking.

ENDURANCE RECORD OF HALDEMAN AND STINSON APPROVED

Washington, May 11.—(UP)—The endurance record established by Eddie Stinson and George W. Haldean in a Stinson monoplane at Jacksonville, Fla., has been approved officially by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the National Aeronautical Association was advised today. The ruling was made in the case of C. W. Ebert, receiver for the Olvia Cooperative Mercantile company, against Michael Felska, one of the stockholders.

CHICAGO HOST TO THE BREMEN CREW TODAY

CITY ADDS WELCOMING TRIBUTE TO ACCLAIM ACCORDED FLIERS

FLIERS WERE DELAYED BY RAIN AND FOG, THEN LANDED AT WRONG FIELD

Chicago, May 11.—(UP)—Chicago was host today to the crew of the Bremen.

Eagerly receiving the trans-Atlantic fliers, the city added its welcoming tribute to the acclaim which other American cities have accorded them on their triumphal tour.

The Junkers plane in which Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, Maj. James Fitzmaurice and Captain Hermann Koehl flew here from Cleveland, arrived at the municipal airport late yesterday. Thousands had waited there for hours to hail the distinguished guests.

The fliers explained that they had been delayed first by rain and fog, and then, after reaching the city, had landed at the wrong field.

It was there, at Maywood field, that the first Chicagoan greeted them. A small boy came running after their plane as it slowed to a stop.

"Hey, there," he shouted, "ain't you lost? Follow the railroad tracks to the municipal airport. Say, which is Fitzmaurice? Will you shake hands with me? Gosh, I'm glad to see you."

And he shook hands not only with the Irish major, but with the entire crew. When they arrived at the municipal airport, the fliers were greeted by an official welcoming committee, headed by Mayor William Hale Thompson, who had waited in the rain for three hours.

The fliers were escorted to their hotel, and left to rest until 1 P. M. today, when they were to be guests of honor at a luncheon given by Mayor Thompson at the South Shore Country Club.

The only other event on their program today was an automobile tour of the city after the luncheon. The evening was open to their personal plans.

Tomorrow they will attend a reception given by representatives of German and Irish societies. It will be followed by a parade and a specially-arranged program at Soldiers' Field. In the evening the fliers will attend a banquet and the next morning they will leave for Milwaukee.

Chicago, May 11.—Capt. Hermann Koehl, of the crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen, told the United Press today that he and Major Jas. Fitzmaurice and Baron Gunther von Huenefeld have discussed a possible flight from Boston to Berlin in their plane, the Bremen.

Koehl said, however, no definite plans had been made and that it was merely a possibility over which they had talked along with other tentative plans for the future.

Major Fitzmaurice told the United Press that such a flight might take place, but that for the present the three fliers have no definite plans.

LINDBERGH REFUSES TO DISCUSS PARLEY WITH FORDS

New York, May 11.—(UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today refused to discuss the nature of his conferences with Henry Ford and Edsel Ford at Dearborn yesterday.

The trans-Atlantic flyer arrived at Curtiss Field, L. I., last night after what he described as an uneventful trip from Detroit, Mich. He was flying his Ryan monoplane and was accompanied by Captain P. V. H. Weems.

Lindbergh left the field immediately after landing and declined to say what his New York plans were. A rough outline of the colonel's trans-Atlantic flight via Greenland was said to have been agreed upon at the conference with the Fords.

A Ford Motor Company freight vessel is expected to aid the flight. It was understood to have been offered to carry the University of Michigan expedition to Greenland as soon as ice conditions permit. The expedition will prepare a landing field for Lindbergh's plane.

From the present outlook, it was said a start could not be made by Lindbergh before late June or early July.

Most of the details of the trip were worked out at informal conferences.

ESCAPED ONE DANGER, OVERCOME BY ANOTHER

EDSEL FORD CONTRIBUTED $5,000, STATED

SENATOR WALTER EDGE, NEW JERSEY, DONATED $1,000

GOOD, THE CAMPAIGN DIRECTOR, SAYS HOOVER IS "AS GOOD AS NOMINATED"

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 11.—The Hoover for president organization here has spent $42,032.16, and accepted contributions of $49,150, James R. Good, campaign director, told the senate campaign investigating committee today.

The largest contributor was Edsel Ford, son of the Detroit automobile manufacturer, Good said. Ford gave $5,000.

Sen. Walter Edge, republican, New Jersey, was listed with a donation of $1,000.

"Shortly after President Coolidge announced he would not be a candidate, friends of Mr. Hoover started organizing in various states," Good said.

"Our organization was made primarily to answer questions which were being propounded to the secretary."

Good said Hoover was "as good as nominated." Senator McMaster, republican, South Dakota, objected that Good was making a campaign speech when he discussed Hoover's availability.

Chairman Steiwer asked Good how many pages more there were in his prepared statement and Good answered he wanted the senators to hear his statement.

Steiwer insisted the witness he permitted to laud Hoover in any way he chose "although in my opinion it is irrelevant." Good thereupon was permitted to continue his statement.

Hoover wrote the committee today that he had conferred with Senators Sackett, republican, Kentucky, and Moses, republican, New Hampshire, before entering the West Virginia primary. He had declined Wednesday to give the names.

"In respect to inquiries by Sen. Bratton, I have received approval of Senators Moses and Sackett to state that they held discussions both with Senator Goff and myself," Hoover stated in his letter.

Former Rep. Phil P. Campbell testified he was president of a local Curtis for president organization and had spent $274.25. Contributions amounted, he said, to $590.

Good said the total expense of Hoover clubs and organizations up to convention time would be less than $250,000. Expenses listed by Good include $5,417 for postage, printing and mailing, $13,432 for headquarters rent and $5,676 for traveling expenses, and $3,948.13 advanced to the Kansas City headquarters.

Good said $6,000 had been sent to Minnesota.

Good said he believed about $25,000 had been spent in Indiana and $40,000 in Ohio.

"No one will be allowed to contribute who is taking any profits out of the public treasury," Good said. "There will be no overdraft. There will be no names on the subscription list against whom anyone can object. There will be no contributors who have contractual relationship with the U. S. government."

Good contended Hoover could carry all of the agricultural states "Any outstanding republican can carry the midwest," he said.

"You may have to wait for the results," Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, said.

"Oh—the results—we are perfectly satisfied with the results," Good added. "I want to demonstrate that our money is being spent economically."

MINNESOTA STILL ENDANGERED BY FIRE HAZARDS

St. Paul, May 11.—(UP)—Although all fires are reported under control Minnesota is still endangered by forest fire hazards, according to a report of the United States weather bureau.

With little or no rain in the forest region, conditions are still growing worse, according to the report. A heavy rain would remove the possibility of serious fires.

State forestry officials report all fires under control with 600 fire fighters held in readiness for new blazes. Between 50 and 60 fires are said to be still burning but are slowly being brought under control, it was said.

BIG EASTERN DERBY DAY AT BALTIMORE

30,000 TO 40,000 PERSONS ARE
CROWDING TO WATCH
THE RACES

37TH RUNNING OF THE RICH
PREAKNESS THIS AFTER-
NOON

Baltimore, Md., May 11.—(UP)—The big eastern derby day arrived today with between 30,000 and 40,000 persons crowding into Baltimore to watch the 37th running of the rich Preakness this afternoon.

Twenty-one horses, from the east and west, were entered for the race that will mean so much in deciding what horses are of the caliber to be entered in the Kentucky derby next week.

Nassak, Distraction, Strolling Player, Honker and Victorian are among the horses receiving the heavy backing. The former is the one by which Harry F. Sinclair hopes to make up for the failure of Zev in the 1923 Preakness.

Admiral Gary T. Grayson has entered his great imported colt, Strolling Player, which may make a real bid for prominence.

Indications were for a fast track today, which will go against Mrs. Henry C. Phipps' Distraction which has found the going best on heavier courses.

There will be no mutual field in the betting today and track officials have arranged to have a place on the machines for all starters.

The race will be broadcast over a hook-up arranged that will carry the colorful description to most of the major American and Canadian cities. Clem McCarthy will be at the microphone here.

ARE AGAINST INTERVENTION OF JAPANESE

TSINAN HAS NOW FALLEN BEFORE DRIVE OF JAPANESE TROOPS

CHINESE NATIONALIST ARMY EVACUATES THAT POINT

Geneva, May 11.—(UP)—The Chinese nationalist government today appealed to the League of Nations against Japanese intervention in Shantung province.

The nationalist government's appeal was made under paragraph two, article 11, of the League covenant, on the ground that the Shantung situation was one threatening to disturb international relations.

"On May 7," the nationalist complaint said, "the Japanese military authorities at Tsinan sent a note to our commander-in-chief containing unreasonable and impossible demands, and demanding compliance with them within twelve hours. But without awaiting a reply, the Japanese troops started warlike action on an extensive scale, which had not ceased at the present writing."

The league secretariat immediately telegraphed the text of the Chinese appeal to all governments, represented on the league council, or governing body.

It was extremely doubtful, however, whether the league could act on the appeal because the nationalist government is not a member of the league and is not the recognized government of China.

But if the northern government at Peking should support the charge, or some other league member should call the council's attention to the situation, or if Japan herself requested the league to intervene, action would be possible.

Tsingtao, China, May 11.—Tsinan has fallen before the vigorous drive of the Japanese expeditionary forces and the Chinese nationalist army has evacuated, it was learned here today.

Vigorous fighting preceded the rout of General Chiang Kai-Shek's remaining forces, estimated at about 2,600.

The remnants of the southern army for hours had bitterly resisted the Japanese approach and had signalled they would not surrender even though Japanese planes whirled overhead and the Japanese gunners laid down a steady barrage on the walled city.

The evacuation of the entrenchments within the walled city, a section adjoining the main commercial area of Tsinan, came after the Chinese Chamber of Commerce had intervened.

The army fled suddenly, leaving the Japanese in control of the city. Already they had cleared a path between their lines and the walled city and had taken over part of that stronghold.

The Japanese were halting their fire to demand surrender when the Chinese evacuated the city.

The Japanese made a bitter attack to advance through the area surrounding the walled city and captured and disarmed a number of scattered Chinese units. The Chinese resisted but could present no solid front against the approaching Japanese.

Once the Japanese arrived at the walled city they advanced, took about half of it, and then called a halt to the operations and started surrender tactics.

Airplanes were sent over the entrenched Chinese soldiers and the fliers dropped leaflets advising the Chinese to surrender. The Chinese would not do this. For about three hours this practice went on and finally the 2,000 besieged troops evacuated the city.

Peking, China, May 11.—Mrs. W. T. Hobart, American Methodist missionary at Tsinan, has been murdered by Chinese troops, the American legation was advised today.

The murder occurred in Tsinan on April 29, the reports reaching here said.

There had been rumors that the American had been killed but official reports of confirmation had been delayed.

Shanghai, May 11.—Chinese nationalist armies in the Tsinanfu area today were reported to be in retreat (Continued on page 4)

Buenos Aires, May 11.—(UP)—Dispatches to the newspaper Laprensa from Montevideo today said that the American aviator O'Neil had crashed near Minas.

The reports to the newspaper said the airplane was destroyed and that apparently O'Neil was injured seriously.

O'Neil was attempting a flight from Florianopolis to Porto Alegre and had been missing many hours.

LINDBERGH REFUSES TO DISCUSS PARLEY WITH FORDS

New York, May 11.—(UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today refused to discuss the nature of his conferences with Henry Ford and Edsel Ford at Dearborn yesterday.

The trans-Atlantic flyer arrived at Curtiss Field, L. I., last night after what he described as an uneventful trip from Detroit, Mich. He was flying his Ryan monoplane and was accompanied by Captain P. V. H. Weems.

Lindbergh left the field immediately after landing and declined to say what his New York plans were. A rough outline of the colonel's trans-Atlantic flight via Greenland was said to have been agreed upon at the conference with the Fords.

A Ford Motor Company freight vessel is expected to aid the flight. It was understood to have been offered to carry the University of Michigan expedition to Greenland as soon as ice conditions permit. The expedition will prepare a landing field for Lindbergh's plane.

From the present outlook, it was said a start could not be made by Lindbergh before late June or early July.

Most of the details of the trip were worked out at informal conferences.

GOOD, THE CAMPAIGN DIRECTOR,
SAYS HOOVER IS "AS GOOD AS NOMINATED"

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, May 11.—The Hoover for president organization here has spent $42,032.16, and accepted contributions of $49,150, James R. Good, campaign director, told the senate campaign investigating committee today.

The largest contributor was Edsel Ford, son of the Detroit automobile manufacturer, Good said. Ford gave $5,000.

Sen. Walter Edge, republican, New Jersey, was listed with a donation of $1,000.

"Shortly after President Coolidge announced he would not be a candidate, friends of Mr. Hoover started organizing in various states," Good said.

"Our organization was made primarily to answer questions which were being propounded to the secretary."

Good said Hoover was "as good as nominated." Senator McMaster, republican, South Dakota, objected that Good was making a campaign speech when he discussed Hoover's availability.

Chairman Steiwer asked Good how many pages more there were in his prepared statement and Good answered he wanted the senators to hear his statement.

Steiwer insisted the witness be permitted to read Hoover in any way he chose "although in my opinion it is irrelevant." Good thereupon was permitted to continue his statement.

Hoover wrote the committee today that he had conferred with Senators Sackett, republican, Kentucky, and Moses, republican, New Hampshire, before entering the West Virginia primary. He had declined Wednesday to give the names.

"In respect to inquiries by Sen. Bratton, I have received approval of Senators Moses and Sackett to state that they held discussions both with Senator Goff and myself," Hoover stated in his letter.

Former Rep. Phil P. Campbell testified he was president of a local Curtis for president organization and had spent $274.25. Contributions amounted, he said, to $59.

Good said the total expense of Hoover clubs and organizations up to convention time would be less than $250,000. Expenses listed by Good include $5,417 for postage, printing and mailing, $13,432 for headquarters rent and $5,676 for traveling expenses, and $3,948.13 advanced to the Kansas City headquarters.

Good said $6,000 had been sent to Minnesota.

Good said he believed about $35,000 had been spent in Indiana and $40,000 in Ohio.

"No one will be allowed to contribute who is taking any profits out of the public treasury," Good said.

"There will be no overdraft. There will be no names on the subscription list against whom anyone can object. There will be no contributors who have contractual relationship with the U. S. government."

Good contended Hoover could carry all of the agricultural states.

"Any outstanding republican can carry the midwest," he said.

"You may have to wait for the results," Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, said.

"Oh—the results—we are perfectly satisfied with the results," Good added. "I want to demonstrate that our money is being spent economically."

MINNESOTA STILL ENDANGERED BY FIRE HAZARDS

St. Paul, May 11.—(UP)—Although all fires are reported under control Minnesota is still endangered by forest fire hazards, according to a report of the United States weather bureau.

With little or no rain in the forest region, conditions are still growing worse, according to the report. A heavy rain would remove the possibility of serious fires.

State forestry officials report all fires under control with 600 fire fighters held in readiness for new blazes. Between 50 and 60 fires are said to be still burning but are slowly being brought under control, it was said.

BIG EASTERN
BALTIMORE30,000 TO 40,000 PERSONS ARE
CROWDING TO WATCH
THE RACES37TH RUNNING OF THE RICH
PREAKNESS THIS AFTER-
NOON

Baltimore, Md., May 11.—(UP)—The big eastern derby day arrived today with between 30,000 and 40,000 persons crowding into Baltimore to watch the 37th running of the rich Preakness this afternoon.

Twenty-one horses, from the east and west, were entered for the race that will mean so much in deciding what horses are of the caliber to be entered in the Kentucky derby next week.

Nassak, Distraction, Strolling Player, Honker and Victorian are among the horses receiving the heavy backing. The former is the one by which Harry F. Sinclair hopes to make up for the failure of Zev in the 1923 Preakness.

Admiral Gary T. Grayson has entered his great imported colt, Strolling Player, which may make a real bid for prominence.

Indications were for a fast track today, which will go against Mrs. Henry C. Phipps' Distraction which has found the going best on heavier courses.

There will be no mutual field in the betting today and track officials have arranged to have a place on the machines for all starters.

The race will be broadcast over a hook-up arranged that will carry the colorful description to most of the American and Canadian cities. Clem McCarthy will be at the microphone here.

ARE AGAINST INTERVENTION
OF JAPANESETSINAN HAS NOW FALLEN BE-FORE DRIVE OF JAPANESE
TROOPSCHINESE NATIONALIST ARMY
EVACUATES THAT POINT

Geneva, May 11.—(UP)—The Chinese nationalist government today appealed to the League of Nations against Japanese intervention in Shantung province.

The nationalist government's appeal was made under paragraph two, article 11, of the League covenant, on the ground that the Shantung situation was one threatening to disturb international relations.

"On May 7," the nationalist complaint said, "the Japanese military authorities at Tsinan sent a note to our commander-in-chief containing unreasonable and impossible demands, and demanding compliance with them within twelve hours. But without awaiting a reply, the Japanese troops started warlike action on an extensive scale, which had not ceased at the present writing."

The league secretariat immediately telegraphed the text of the Chinese appeal to all governments, represented on the league council, or governing body.

It was extremely doubtful, however, whether the league could act on the appeal because the nationalist government is not a member of the league and is not the recognized government of China.

But if the northern government at Peking should support the charge, or some other league member should call the council's attention to the situation, or if Japan herself requested the league to intervene, action would be possible.

Tsingtao, China, May 11.—Tainan has fallen before the vigorous drive of the Japanese expeditionary forces and the Chinese nationalist army has evacuated, it was learned here today.

Vigorous fighting preceded the rout of General Chiang Kai-Shek's remaining forces, estimated at about 2,000.

The remnants of the southern army for hours had bitterly resisted the Japanese approach and had signalled they would not surrender even though Japanese planes whirled overhead and the Japanese gunners laid down a steady barrage on the walled city.

The evacuation of the entrenchments within the walled city, a section adjoining the main commercial area of Tsinan, came after the Chinese Chamber of Commerce had intervened.

The army fled suddenly, leaving the Japanese in control of the city. Already they had cleared a path between their lines and the walled city and had taken over part of that stronghold.

The Japanese were halting their fire to demand surrender when the Chinese evacuated the city.

The Japanese made a bitter attack to advance through the area surrounding the walled city and captured and disarmed a number of scattered Chinese units. The Chinese resisted but could present no solid front against the approaching Japanese.

Once the Japanese arrived at the walled city they advanced, took about half of it, and then called a halt to the operations and started surrender tactics.

Airplanes were sent over the entrenched Chinese soldiers and the fliers dropped leaflets advising the Chinese to surrender. The Chinese would not do this. For about three hours this practice went on and finally the 2,000 besieged troops evacuated the city.

Peking, China, May 11.—Mrs. W. T. Hobart, American Methodist missionary at Tsinan, has been murdered by Chinese troops, the American legation was advised today.

The murder occurred in Tsinan on April 29, the reports reaching here said.

There had been rumors that the American had been killed but official reports of confirmation had been delayed.

Shanghai, May 11.—Chinese nationalist armies in the Tsinan area today were reported to be in retreat. (Continued on page 4)

BANDITS STOLE $15,000 CURRENCY

Postal Inspectors, State and County Authorities Seeking Three Mail Bandits

MOST DARING ROBBERY

Herman Olander, Severely Beaten Over the Head Tells Story of Attack Upon Him

Agents of the state bureau of criminal identification and apprehension and postal inspectors today concentrated their efforts at the location of the $15,000 mail robbery one mile east of Crosby with the view in mind of picking up possible clues as to the identity of the three holdup men and the possibility of their lying in hiding in the district.

The professional way in which the holdup was executed leads officers to believe that the gunmen were members of the underworld of a large city.

Following the daring robbery the men turned back towards Deerwood in their Buick sedan leaving Herman Olander, mail carrier, semi-conscious with a deep cut in his forehead where one of the bandits had struck him with a gun as they overpowered him after forcing his car into the ditch on Highway No. 2. His car temporarily put out of running, Olander, half ran, half stumbled to Crosby where he told his story.

The robbery took place shortly after the noon hour as Olander was bringing the mail pouches to Crosby. Five sacks of mail were stolen by the bandits containing approximately $15,000 in currency consigned to meet pay checks on range mines.

The holdup of the messenger's car was executed in a cool, precise manner. Driving alongside the mail car the bandits ordered Olander to stop. As he did one of the bandits struck him over the head with a shotgun he carried. One of the bandits took the wheel of the car while the second remained in the rear seat. The third remained in the bandit car. Unable to drive the car the bandits forced the injured mailman to take the car and drive towards Crosby. The bandit changed the mirror in the front seat of the car to prevent Olander from seeing the license plate on the bandit car. It was while attempting to turn into a side road near Crosby at the demand of the front seat bandit that Olander was forced into the ditch. At this point the bandits grabbed five of the mail pouches and returned on the highway towards Deerwood.

The robbery was witnessed by L. A. Blakeney of Crosby and Harry Clark and his son, Carl, farmers near Deerwood. Mr. Blakeney told of seeing the two cars at the side of the road but his suspicions were not aroused as he thought the group were tourists. The Clarks likewise passed the two cars but saw nothing to lead them to suspect occupants of the bandit car.

Officials in charge of the search expressed the opinion that the three bandits are the same who a few days ago robbed the Spring Valley National bank of $15,000 after threatening six employees and striking a seventh on the head with the butt of a gun.

As in the Spring Valley robbery the bandits were unmasked and made little attempt to conceal their features. The three were well dressed and drove a large sedan.

Postal Inspectors Anderson and Griggs following a close examination reported the loss to be approximately $15,000, the money being consigned to the First National bank of Crosby.

The bandits undoubtedly took into consideration in executing the robbery the fact that sheriff's forces were in attendance at the district court hearing here.

Inspector Griggs first received the information of the mail robbery on his return from Merrifield when he purchased a copy of the Brainerd Daily Dispatch. He changed his route from Fargo, N. D., to Crosby where he is now assisting in the criminals. He motored to the range with the deputy force of Sheriff Claus A. Theorin.

Harry McKinnon and O. C. Lee, agents of the state bureau of criminal identification and apprehension, joined the postal inspectors in a search last night for the bandits.

MINISTERS ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEARS

Rev. J. R. Michaelson Named Head of Brainerd Ministers' Association

YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED

Rev. August Samuelson Discusses Sperry's Book, "Reality in Worship"

At the Brainerd Ministers' Association meeting last Monday in the "Y" the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. J. R. Michaelson of the Bethlehem Lutheran church; vice-president, Rev. Harold F. Damon of the First Baptist church; secretary-treasurer, Rev. M. L. Eversz of the First Methodist church; assistant secretary-treasurer, I. L. Peterson, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The above were named also on the program committee.

The past year has been one of mental stimulus in that eight of the outstanding books of the day have been reviewed. Books on psychology, philosophy, comparative religion, economics, fundamentalism, modernism, and worship, have been carefully considered. Grey matter has been stirred and pulses have been quickened, visions broadened. Last Monday Rev. August Samuelson of the Clara Lutheran church reviewed Dean Sperry's book on "Reality in Worship," discussing such subjects as worship as a habit, the divine discontent, christian realism, who goes to church and why, who does not and why, objective and subjective worship. A weakness of Protestantism is its excessive subjectivism. A weakness of Catholicism is its excessive objectivism. The real motive in worship was the answering of soul's need of God. This need must be answered in an intelligent way or worship becomes fetish.

Rev. Samuelson grades the proofs of a christian realism thus: Men dying for Christ is a proof of realism but not the highest, for the heathen have died for their faith. Socrates drank the hemlock. Martyrdom is not the final proof of reality. Men working for Christ is further proof of christian realism but still not the highest. Men living like Christ is the greatest and ultimate proof, he said.

Going to church is a good habit but if it is only a habit it becomes a creeping paralysis. Men must go to church to get and give the bread of life by which souls grow. The divine discontent is expressed in these words, "Thou hast made us for thyself. Our hearts are not at rest until they are at rest in Thee," the speaker concluded.

DALE SANDERS COMMENDED

Superintendent W. C. Cobb Gives Report on Monthly Condition of Schools

The board of education at their meeting this week heard the question of adopting supervised play in the school grounds and parks of the city this summer and authorized the chairman to appoint a committee to confer with a committee from the city council in this respect. President G. D. LaBar appointed Mrs. J. A. Thabes, George Falconer, F. M. Hagberg, to work on the committee, with power to act.

The finance committee was instructed to place $5,000 insurance on school equipment in the old court house building.

A motion was made that the board congratulate Dale Sanders on winning the northwest bugling contest at Minneapolis last Saturday and that an official letter from the board be sent to him congratulating him on his achievement.

The following letter was received by the board from W. E. Paul, secretary of the M. E. church:

"At a recent meeting of the official board of the First M. E. church, there was considerable comment on the fact that apparently the church building was none the worse for wear on account of its use by the high school students.

When a large number of young folks, bubbling over with pep and youthful exuberance, can use a building for ten days with the respect and consideration they apparently had for our church building, without marring or abusing it in any way, we naturally feel that a word of appreciation is in order.

"Our church board wishes to extend to the board of education, as well as the high school students of Brainerd, its thanks and assurance of appreciation."

The following is the report for the Brainerd schools for the month of April as submitted by Supt. W. C. Cobb:

In the matter of school attendance the school month just closed has been the most disastrous on account of the general epidemic that the schools have experienced in many years. In the following tabulation, the wide margin between the first column, or school enrollment, and the third column, or average attendance, may be accounted for by the many spring activities of the high school have been abandoned on account of the fire and we believe that the students will finish up their year's work without suffering any serious educational loss other than again:

The high school commencement exercises will be held in the Park theatre on Friday evening, June 1st, with Dr. L. D. Bugbee, of Minneapolis, for commencement speaker.

Baccalaureate services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, May 20th, with the Rev. Morris Eversz giving the address.

The high school operetta, which is usually given every other year by Miss Rickard, music supervisor, will be held in the opera house Monday evening, May 14th.

The graduating class this year will number about 110 members exclusive of the 11 normal training graduates.

Within the last few days all of the salvaged books and furniture from the old high school building have been transferred to the high school quarters at the old court house and the books stored on shelving in the attic.

The present high school quarters at the court house are each week assuming more and more a regular school building aspect and pupils and teachers are settling down to regular school routine.

The state high school inspector, E. M. Phillips, made a hasty visit to the high school last week and expressed himself as highly pleased with the progress made in meeting the emergency of housing 600 school children. Few, if any, of the custo-

The high school commencement exercises will be held in the Park theatre on Friday evening, June 1st, with Dr. L. D. Bugbee, of Minneapolis, for commencement speaker.

Baccalaureate services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, May 20th, with the Rev. Morris Eversz giving the address.

The high school operetta, which is usually given every other year by Miss Rickard, music supervisor, will be held in the opera house Monday evening, May 14th.

The graduating class this year will number about 110 members exclusive of the 11 normal training graduates.

Within the last few days all of the salvaged books and furniture from the old high school building have been transferred to the high school quarters at the old court house and the books stored on shelving in the attic.

The present high school quarters at the court house are each week assuming more and more a regular school building aspect and pupils and teachers are settling down to regular school routine.

The state high school inspector, E. M. Phillips, made a hasty visit to the high school last week and expressed himself as highly pleased with the progress made in meeting the emergency of housing 600 school children. Few, if any, of the cus-

HOOVER'S CHANCES

WE like to read the viewpoint of an independent newspaper and so give readers this review of the Duluth Herald on Hoover's chances for the nomination:

If Mr. Hoover had carried Indiana against Favorite Son Watson, senator from that state, his chance of winning the nomination would have been very greatly improved.

But he didn't carry Indiana.

Despite the fact that few even in Indiana believe that Senator Watson will be seriously considered in the national convention, despite the fact that a revolt against recent party scandals should have helped Hoover, the state has gone for Watson and against Hoover by a fairly substantial majority.

This is beyond doubt a setback in the career of the Hoover candidacy, which had been going so strong up to yesterday that it had assumed something of the nature of a boom.

It is not, of course, a defeat for the secretary of commerce. It is only a failure to achieve a goal that would have put him pretty close to victory. He is still the leading candidate, but he is still short of nomination by a hundred votes.

Those hundred votes will be cast pretty coolly and calmly by men who know that Al Smith is to be the Democratic nominee and who want above all things a candidate who can beat him. They fear Hoover's weakness in the corn belt, and they fear his weakness in New York. If they could be convinced that these fears were groundless they would go to him. If they can't be convinced they will do their level best to nominate Mr. Coolidge.

And at this moment Mr. Coolidge is as likely to be the Republican candidate as Mr. Hoover.

COLLEGE STUDENT STILL MISSING

BRAINERD people take an interest in the fate of Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College student. People here had an idea she had been seen in the neighborhood and the Dispatch secured pictures and other data clearly establishing that she had not been in the lake region here.

All conjecture and theory that the girl might have sought suicide in Paradise pond, the college campus lake, was banished when for the first time since the girl's disappearance on January 13, the pond was completely drained.

A few days after the 18-year-old heiress, daughter of St. John Smith, a New York broker, was reported missing, the pond was partly drained. But the bottom was covered with ice cakes and it was considered quite possible that beneath these a body might have been concealed.

For eight hours the torrent swirled over the lip of the dam, employees of Smith College keeping a sharp watch on both sides for anything that resembled a body. When the water was down to a sluggish, muddy stream scarcely two feet deep, Irving Brown, who had charge of the boathouse, paddled over the pond in a canoe probing holes in the lake bottom with a long pole. Two hours later the pond was drained completely but a close search failed to find the body, as reported in the Minneapolis Journal.

Then has followed a report that the girl was seen in Canada, but nothing further has developed.

INVITE THE "LAGS"

A STILLWATER paper calls attention to the "lags" of the state and that they should be invited to hold conventions in Minnesota. The Post-Messenger says:

"We notice by the Willmar Tribune that the 'Stavanger Laget' will meet this summer in that city. This 'lag,' which refers to the people from a particular limited province of Norway, and scores of similar 'lags' meet annually every year at some favored spot in Minnesota. They are frequently attended by hundreds of people from adjoining states who come here to enjoy the great outdoors. The sturdy Norsemen who make up the lag meetings should cast their eyes in the direction of Stillwater for their next summer meeting, for here alone will they find surroundings which will intrigue them to come year after year. Along the picturesque St. Croix may be pointed out thousands of spots bearing striking resemblance to the rugged shores of Norway and Sweden."

The Brainerd Lake Region, like the country about Stillwater, is interesting to the visitor. It will bring back memories of the home land to see the lakes and dells here. True, there may not be many fjords here and our only "mountains" are meagre hills, but in everything else we are the equal of the home land and will be glad to welcome a "lag" to this community.

OUTLAWING THE LAWLESS

THE high-handed and piratical activities of several so-called "big" business men in recent years has been a source of disgust and resentment to the thousands who respect and observe the established ethics of their profession.

Judge Edwin B. Parker, speaking at the sixteenth annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, sounded a justifiable note of warning and echoed the opinion of all honest business men when he declared that unless business purges itself of those who flaunt the law and abuse their power, the public will turn loose the thunders of wrath which will result in such severe legislative and governmental regulatory measures that legitimate business will find itself henceforth hampered.

There is no question that the recent conspiracy trials in which prominent business men and industrial chiefs have figured, have brought discredit on American business as a whole. If business does not repudiate and "outlaw" such flagrantly unethical tactics as have lately been exposed, it will be construed that business countenances them. A man does not willingly retain a "black eye," and business should lose no time in erasing this smirch on its escutcheon.—Minneapolis Star.

THE Aitkin barrel heading mill of the Illinois Cooperage Co. has started a night crew which will be employed for about six weeks getting out the large stock of green timber in the company's boom in the Mississippi. The company has about 3,000,000 feet of timber to be worked up for the coming season, which insures steady work for their large crew of men.

SPRING seems to have made a permanent stay. Eighty degrees above was recorded at the government thermometer station.

A WOULD-BE short change grafter tried to ply his trade in Aitkin, but was easily detected by sharp-witted clerks.

AN epidemic of influenza has bothered Walker school pupils.

after losing two engagements with the Japanese expeditionary forces. Casualties to the Chinese were said to be heavy. The Japanese casualties were placed at 25.
The Chinese armies were said to have divided, one crossing the Yellow

In one of the engagements, lasting about three hours, the Japanese force comprising the Sotoyama Brigade and a contingent of the Tientsin garrison, forced the southerners to surrender in Tsinan.

In the other engagement a Japanese relief expedition, en route from Dairen to Tsinan, fought with a nationalist troop at Kotien, 15 miles from Tsinan.

Hostility against foreigners is increasing, reports here said. One hundred cases of assault on Japanese children were reported to authorities and the Japanese announced marines would be sent outside the foreign settlement in case the menace grew, warranting intervention.

By ROBERT C. DOWSON
Sandwich, Eng., May 11.—Walter Hagen today succeeded Bobby Jones as British Open Golf champion, winning the title for the third time with a splendid aggregate of 292.

The American P. G. A. titleholder played two brilliant par rounds over the Royal St. George's course, steady as clock-work while his more temperamental rivals cracked, and later stepped smilingly up to receive the historic cup from the hands of the Prince of Wales.

It was over this same Sandwich course that Hagen first won the British Open in 1922 with an aggregate of 300. He won again at Hoy Lake in 1924 with 301.

Gene Sarazen turned in a card of 294.

Sarazen's game fight for second place, however, compared favorably with the last round efforts of Wild Bill Mehlhorn and Jose Jurado, both of whom cracked and went to pieces.

Leading Hagen by three strokes when the day's play started, little Jurado from Buenos Aires blew up and lost 12 strokes to the new titleholder, finishing with rounds of 76 and 80 for a total of 301.

Long Jim Barnes, who won the British Open in 1925, was too far behind to catch Hagen, but turned in rounds of 76-73 to tie Jurado at 301.

Mehlhorn's play today was extremely erratic, and he finished with 76-77 for a total of 302.

Archie Compston, who had defeated Hagen in match play recently, had a total of 295, three strokes behind Hagen and a stroke behind Sarazen.

Fred Robson, British professional, took a 75 on his last round and tied Percy Alliss of Berlin for fourth place, with a total of 298.

Barnes and Aubrey Boomer of St. Cloud, France, tied for sixth with 301.

Archie Compston's card for the final round:

Mr. Rudolph is very much in love with the country in and around Brainerd and is trying to persuade his folks to sell their farm in Ohio and move to this country. He has a host of friends who will come to the lakes in this region this summer, several with the intention of establishing summer homes here.

St. Louis, May 11.—Following in the footsteps of his predecessor, Bob O'Farrell, 1927 manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has been traded to the New York Giants just as was Rogers Hornsby.

O'Farrell, provided the physical disabilities that kept him from recent games may be overcome, will go to John McGraw's club in exchange for the veteran outfielder, George Harper. The trade became known last night.

St. Louis fans were almost as puzzled over this sudden shift of the popular O'Farrell as they were two years ago when Hornsby, who had led the Cardinals to their first championship, suddenly was sent to New York in exchange for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Rink. However, in the Hornsby case, it was known that he wanted much more money and was not in full accord with some of the officials of the Cardinals.

But there have been few, if any, hints, that O'Farrell wasn't getting on.

The chubby O'Farrell came to the Cardinals several years ago in a trade that took Mike Gonzales and Howard Freigau to the Chicago Cubs. Bob immediately became popular because of his willingness and his general all around ability. He was rated as one of the best catchers in the National League.

During the winter the Cardinal management appointed Bill McKechnie manager of the Cardinals in place of O'Farrell but gave Bob a considerable salary increase, believing he would be a better receiver this year if he had no managerial worries. O'Farrell declared he was satisfied with the arrangement and would give McKechnie all the help possible.

But injuries—the same bad thumb and shoulder—forced O'Farrell out of many games this year. At least that is what fans believed had happened although with the trade, there was some question today as to whether there had been any differences between the popular catcher and the management.

Harper probably will help the Cardinals' outfield, which has been shot by injuries this season. Harper, though a veteran, is a hard hitter and probably will add considerable batting strength to the Cardinal offensive.

A wild tenth inning featured the Cincinnati-Boston game, the Braves breaking a 3 to 3 tie by scoring 4 runs, and then checking the Reds after the latter had scored three times in their half. Carl Mays was the victim in the big inning which gave Boston a 7 to 6 victory.

Faced with demands for a shake-up, Manager Ray Schalk shifted the White Sox line-up and got the club out of the cellar with a 9 to 2 victory over the Red Sox, who helped matters along with six errors.

"Fat" Fothergill, restored to the Detroit outfield, scored Gehring with the winning run in the tenth, the Tigers defeating the Senators, 6 to 5. The Tigers now have a percentage of .381 in the American league averages.

O. U. POOR FISH WEDDED AT LAST

Becomes Husband of the Attractive
Miss Isabelle
Snodgrass

AT U. C. T. AUDITORIUM

Large Assemblage at Show, Play
Brought to Successful
Close

O. U. Poor Fish, promising young business man of Brainerd, became the husband of Miss Isabelle Snodgrass, the city's leading debutante and beauty, at picturesque ceremonies at the U. C. T. auditorium last night as a large assemblage of friends gathered to witness the rites and congratulate the happy couple.

But, since the Wednesday wedding, rumor had it that the bishop omitted a minor technical phrase in tying the knot and to make the wedding secure the rites were repeated again last evening. The popularity of the groom and bride brought out an even larger audience last night.

The identity of the groom (withheld to the last minute at the request of the bride, revealed no other than D. W. C. Gray. The bride, of course, was the charming W. W. Bane, and the bishop Basil T. Heath.

"The Womanless Wedding" at its two nights, brought forth hearty laughs from the audience as eighty Brainerd men went through their roles of feminine and masculine characterizations.

It was presented under the direction of Miss Esther Du Ludwig, of the Symphon-Levie Co., of Beards-town, Ky., and under the auspices of the Harrison P. T. A.

The wedding brought to a close the evening's presentation of fun. Many notables were among those present for the wedding among these being President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge (George Falconer and Dr. W. A. Erickson), Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Edison (S. R. Adair and R. T. Campbell), Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller (E. Slipp and Dr. B. J. Norquist), Sir Harry Lauder (Harry Fulterton), Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford (C. W. Mahlum and G. H. Bakula), General Pershing (R. L. Gustafson), Col. Lindbergh (Melvin Bredenberg), Madame Galli Curci (W. E. Anderson), Theda Bara (Warren Kasch), Paderewski (Walter Folsom), Madame Schumann-Heink (Amos Maghan), Mary Pickford (Louis Hanson), Fritz Kreisler (Earl Fitzsimmons), Charles Chaplin (W. J. LeNeau).

Hilding Swanson filled the role of butler to perfection. His suave manner produced a high degree of excellence in announcing the arrivals at the wedding.

One of the hits of the evening was the arrival of Negro Mammy (Al Mraz), Baby Sister (Al Ebert), Rastus (G. H. Berkholder), and Sambo (John Holvick). Bus Fitzharris as the flapper of 1928, filled his role well. B. Perry Newton as Fashion Plate became the graceful woman who is the only known one of the fairer sex to have vamped Charlie Lindbergh. There was the Hen-Pecked Husband (Milton Bergstrand), and his devoted wife (May-or Frank E. Little), who produced a real bit of humor. And there was also the country cousin (Rudy Lindbergh), Annie Laurie (Wesley Dahl), Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Grady (Dr. Anderson and G. W. Chadbourn), Sis Hopkins (Henry Cunningham), Twin Sisters (Albin Hill and John A. Hoffbauer, Sr.), Aunt from Barrows (A. W. Bakula), Uncle from Barrows (E. W. VanWalk), Ikey Rosenstein (Roland Jenkins), and the Bad Little Brothers (Joe Swindell and Tommy Walsh). They all helped in putting across the play in a riot of merriment.

Buss Lowe and William Johnston served the punch, and John Beck and Buster Ladd received and guarded the presents. Gaylord Flanta ably filled one of the best roles of the evening in the characterization of the bride's weeping mother, while C. A. Dunnell tried his best to comfort her. George Sweet drew many laughs in the impersonation of old maid aunt. W. C. Cobb was the bride's grandmother and John Bye the bride's grandfather.

John Carlson was the groom's haughty father, and Bob Nichols the mother. Both parts were exceptionally well taken.

The bridal party presented a picturesque scene. Those taking part were: Groomsmen, W. A. Spencer, W. J. Lyons, Ernie Wise; best man, Earl DeRoche; bridesmaids, Leigh Slipp, Earl O'Brien, Ed. Egan, Alvin Buss; maid of honor, Dr. H. A. Carlson; ring bearer, Henry Hoffman; flower girls, Henry Hanson, Levi Folsom; pages, Ray Meyers, Jerry Schrader; train bearer, John Hoffbauer, Jr.

A "PECK" OF MEDICINE DID NO GOOD

But ALL-BRAN brought natural relief

Read what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN did for Mr. Hamilton—a chronic sufferer from constipation.

"I am 55 years old and truly believe I have taken a peck of medicine, costing a good many dollars, for constipation, and all I got was temporary relief. Now since I began taking your ALL-BRAN I have had a bowel movement (with a single exception, and that was my fault) every day. From a grateful user of your ALL-BRAN."

W. N. HAMILTON, Export, Penna.

Constipation causes headaches, blotched skins, sleeplessness, spots before the eyes. It is father of more than forty serious diseases.

Guard against it. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend Kellogg's because it is 100% bran. Because it is much more effective than part-bran products could possibly be.

A health cereal too! Serve with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Use in cooking. Recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"PICKLES" PRACTICE PROCEEDING WELL

High School Operetta to be Presented Monday Evening,
May 14

AT PARK THEATRE

Spectacular Characters are Three
Members of Vienna Police Force

The practicing for the high school operetta, "Pickles," is drawing to a dramatic climax in the final days of rehearsal. The play is an intensely interesting one, full of humor in action and song, with a plot that revolves around the Gypsies' traditional tendency to steal whatever they can find, from lost children to diamond rings. The lost child is the central character about whom the plot and the songs revolve.

The spectacular characters are the three members of the Vienna police force, Captain Ferri Kinski and his cohorts, Bumski and Rumski, all three resplendent in shining epaulettes or red whiskers. The pussy footling and shushing indulged in by the two privates is exceedingly good, and their dancing a revelation of grace and beauty. As these parts are played by Milford Downie, the chesty captain, and Dale Sanders and Joe Greener as the other two, the price of admission would cover that alone.

Then in the Gypsy camp comes a chorus of men led by David Weber as Jigs, the Gypsy king. The song of the tribe, the Marosan, is sung by a group of Gypsies in costume, and the rolling bass voices make a song of unusually pleasing melody—vigorous and tuneful and delightful. There is a song by Ilona, the daughter of the tribe, of the mystical pool, that is so fascinating that it will be whistled around town after the play. Add to that the interesting Jimmy Song, and The Duty of a Cop, The Dreamy, Schemy Widow, Pickles, My Gypsy Queen and a few others, and you have a delightful evening that will live in your memories.

The swelling harmonies of orchestra and voice combined, added to the brilliant costuming, make the operetta a thing to be seen at whatever cost. The tickets are fifty cents, and can be purchased from either the members of the cast or at Dunn's drug store. As the performance is for only one night, tickets are at a premium. The play will be given Monday evening, May 14, at the Park theatre.

Proctor Gives Lengthy Testimony, Appearing as a State Witness in Trial

In the Long case the state closed its presentation of testimony at 1:45 P. M. and the defendant took the stand in his own defense. At 3 P. M. he was being cross examined.

Seventeen jurors were examined, the state using all its challenges. As will be noted there are six men and six women on the jury.

The jury to try P. J. Long, Iron-ton legislator, on charges of receiving stolen property, was chosen com- plete shortly after 3 o'clock yester- day afternoon. The court room is filled and Judge Martin Hughes of Hibbing is presiding.

The state is represented by Ches- ter Wilson and Walter F. Wieland, assistants of the attorney general, and County Attorney Arthur J. Sul- livan. The defendant is represented by Murphy & Cook of Crosby. Friends and neighbors of the range are pres- ent. The defendant's wife is seated back of him.

The charge in the indictment al- leges that Long received $12,000, that A. H. Proctor, former cashier of the First National bank of Iron- ton, now serving sentence at Still- water for bank robbery took the money to Long two weeks after the bank robbery of Nov. 9, 1927, and asked him (Long) to keep it for him which Long is alleged to have done.

The money, $10,000 and not $12- 000, was later found by the authori- ties in a butter jar buried under an old pool room, it is alleged. The money has since been kept at the First National bank of Brainerd in a safety deposit box.

Proctor, former cashier, arrived from Stillwater yesterday in com- pany of two wardens and with them went to the bank at Brainerd to identify the wrappers, labels and serial numbers.

The first witnesses called by the state were T. S. Nyhus, former as- sistant and now cashier of the First National bank of Iron-ton; Ernest Olson, who last November was sec- ond assistant cashier. They testified as to the robbery of the bank.

Proctor was called to the stand about 3:45 P. M. He testified in line with the confession he had previous- ly made, that at the time he believed he had taken $12,000 from the bank. Afterwards, he said, that he thought it was $10,000 only and not $12,000. He remained in the bank with Nyhus, Olson and others and when he found opportunity, placed the money under a safe and then put it in the basement when no one was around. He cached it in a storage vault, wrapping it up in a newspaper. An- other hiding place was in a box back of some trunks. There were six packages of twenties.

He testified he got uneasy with the money in his (Proctor's) possession and turned it over to Long. He met him two weeks after the robbery and handed him a package to keep, said Proctor, did not say anything package to keep a day or so. Long, said Proctor, did not say anything nor ask what the package contained. "Put the package away for me," Proctor said to Long. Proctor went back to the bank and did not see where Long went. A few days later Long asked Proctor what was in the package, Proctor testified, but Proctor did not tell him. Two or three days later Long did not want to keep it in his possession, said Proctor.

Under cross examination Proctor stated that Mr. Long was the best friend he ever had in Crosby or any- where. He told of their acquaint- ance for years, of their association on the school board and the city coun- cil, of seeking Mr. Long's advice during times of distress and finally the story of how he took the stolen money to Mr. Long two weeks after the robbery and asked him to keep the package for him. He said that he did not tell Mr. Long what the package contained and that as the days continued Long requested him to "come and get the package," but he always put it off.

Proctor told of the "nerve wrack- ing days" following the robbery and of his disposition of the money when it became too "hot."

"I didn't want to get Mr. Long in- wrong," said Mr. Proctor. "He was not mixed up in it so I told the offi- cers that I would get the money for them if they would give me time."

"Did you at any time tell Mr. Long that the money was stolen from the bank," Attorney Murphy questioned.

"No," replied Proctor.

"Did you ever tell Mr. Long that you organized the robbery?" Mr. Murphy questioned.

"No," replied Proctor.

Mr. Murphy: "Had you been drinking the day of the robbery?"

Mr. Proctor: "I intended to stay sober that day but my appetite for liquor got the better of me. I had been half drunk every day since the robbery up to my arrest."

He did not tell the officers he had given the money to Long, but told it to Isaac Hazlett of Minneapolis, pres- ident of the bank of Iron-ton, when he made his confession. He pledged Hazlett to secrecy, as he did not want to get long mixed up in it, he said.

Proctor took the officers to his (Proctor's) home and made a per- functory search there and at the bank, but no money was found. Later, Proctor heard Hazlett tell Charles Brown of the Minnesota Bankers' association, where the money was.

After this they came back to Brainerd and Long showed up of his own accord said Proctor, with Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. Long.

Proctor said Long at first denied receiving the money, later admitted it and left with the officers to get the money and the officers found it.

Statement on Cross Examination
Proctor admitted on cross exami- nation by Attorney Murphy that he had told Long, if anything happened to him (Proctor) to divide the money $2,000 to each of Proctor's four children and $2,000 to Proctor's wife and $2,000 to Proctor's mother.

The case bids fair to terminate Saturday and will be followed by the trial of P. W. McGarry, former pool room proprietor of Iron-ton, charged with first degree robbery of the First National bank of Iron-ton.

On resuming the trial this morn- ing Sheriff Claus Theorin was called to the stand to identify the $10,000 which the officers secured from the butter crock and which money has been placed in a safety deposit box in the First National bank of Brain- erd until it could be offered as evi- dence in the trial.

Identification marks, the initials of the officers of E. L. Dole, D. L. Case, C. D. Brown and C. W. Oberg, had been placed on the wrappers of the money bundles while the officers ad written their names on the but- ter crock. The sheriff identified the bundles of money also the but- ter crock.

Wrappers of the money were plac- ed on exhibit after the money had been exhibited to the judge and to the jury. The court then sanctioned the order for Sheriff Theorin to re- turn the bills to the First National bank of Iron-ton, which was carried out this morning. Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg carrying the money there by automobile.

Chester Wilson, assistant attorney general, requested that the sheriff be excused at that time to be recalled later.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg told Mr. Wilson that he first saw the money in the butterjar after Mr. Long had directed him to the loca- tion of its cache. The butterjar con- taining the money, said Mr. Oberg, had been placed a foot deep in the sand under the stage in an old the- atre building owned by Mr. Long.

Almon H. Proctor was again call- ed to the witness stand. He told again of circumstances leading up to the time when he gave Long the money taken from the bank.

"I met Long on the street and I asked him to step in the doorway of a dark building. It was there that I gave him the package which con- tained the money," said Mr. Proctor. "I told him to put it away for me. I didn't give Long much of a chance to say much. Just as soon as I gave him the package I left him."

Mr. Wilson: "Did you tell Mr. Long not to look into the package?"

Mr. Proctor: "No."

Mr. Wilson: "Did you give him instructions at that time what to do with the money?"

Mr. Proctor: "No."

Mr. Wilson: "Did Mr. Long talk to you at any time about taking the package back?"

Mr. Proctor: "He spoke to me at least five times about it."

Mr. Wilson: "When did he first know there was money in the pack- age, to your knowledge?"

Mr. Proctor: "About the first of December I gave him instructions what to do with the money in case anything happened to me."

Mr. Wilson: "Did Mr. Long say anything prior to that time to you to indicate that he knew there was money in the package?"

Mr. Proctor: "He wanted me to take the money back."

Mr. Wilson: "Is it true that the first time you ever told the officers that you thought $10,000 was taken and not $12,000, was the day before the grand jury met and that you had reached that solution after you had talked to Mr. Long many times?"

Attorney Murphy offered objec- tions to the question and the judge sustained the objection.

Mr. Wilson: "You had many talks with Mr. Long in jail?"

Mr. Proctor: "Yes."

Mr. Murphy: "You requested to see Mr. Wieland several times while you were in jail and that you want- ed to tell him at that time that there was $10,000 taken?"

Mr. Proctor: "Yes."

Walter F. Wieland, assistant at- torney general, former county attor- ney and in charge of the investiga- tion of the robbery, was called to the stand shortly before the noon hour. He gave a history of the investiga- tion, told of Proctor's confession in the sheriff's office and told of the misunderstanding between Proctor and Long as to the amount of money in the packages.

Mr. Wieland stated that Mr. Long had not been placed under arrest un- til the grand jury had returned an indictment against him.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

The beautiful Betsy Patterson is staying with her father at Sweet Springs Inn. Surrounded by admirers she is secretly attracted to her French tutor, the handsome La Vert. Two French officers arrive and salute La Vert deferentially as the runaway Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon. They agree to give him another hour in the prospect of entertaining Jerome Bonaparte in Baltimore. She chides him for his apparent lack of interest in the distinguished Frenchman and speculates on her happy lot were she wedded to this Bonaparte whom she is so soon to meet.

"But if you were wedded to sorrow and poverty and care, your ambition thus struck dead, would strike dead your love, is it not so, Mamselle?" Jerome parried craftily.

"Do you think me so unworthy?" Betsy demanded haughtily. "You men think we women have no greater ambition than that of vanity. But our ambition is of the heart—to build for one we love happiness beyond the reach of Fate." She walked to the window and stood looking out across the garden and into the woods beyond. "Oh," she turned her head to look at her tutor. "I think a woman's ambition should rise to its highest height, even at the very threshold of death itself, if the voice of him she loves should say to her: 'You feared not to walk to the grave and to the heaven by my side."

"Oh, Betsy!" Jerome had crossed the room quickly and knelt before the figure of this very serious goddess, kissing her hand as humbly as any slave. "That for me such high words were said." He looked up at her, pleading.

"There," Betsy laughed and pulled her hand away. "You've gone the way of all the tutors, after all your promises to father."

"Ah, Betsy—Betsy!" In his eagerness Jerome did not notice the three figures that stood grouped in the garden looking up at the balcony and through the open window where Jerome knelt before the lady of his heart.

But Betsy had seen them, and now, covered with confusion, she retreated further into the room. "Oh, Lawd!" she exclaimed, directing Jerome's attention to the witnesses. "I know they saw us."

Jerome got up hastily as he recognized in the figures of St. Pierre, Dufresne, and a French messenger—probably De Langiac, he told himself.

"I must go and help Aunt Ellen pack." Betsy flung the words back over her shoulder as she hurried out the door and down the hall before Jerome could stop her.

Captain Bonaparte decided that he had best face the accusations that he felt were forthcoming, and he started briskly out into the hall and down the steps that led to the garden. As he appeared the three men smiled, and De Langiac greeted him with a salute.

"I am glad to find you in such a position," De Langiac smiled. "It indicated remorse—if not repentance."

"Aye, repentance for the blackguard's part, sir, played here," Jerome spoke sadly. "Remorse that I had not the courage to undeceive her and to endure her just contempt."

"Monsieur La Vert!" The golden tones of Betsy floated down from the balcony, and caused Jerome to stop abruptly. He looked up to see the girl leaning over the railing and beckoning to him. He motioned for the three men to withdraw.

"If you like," Betsy called quietly as she drew near in answer to her summons, "you may come to Baltimore with us. You'd better hurry and pack." She smiled and turned to go, and then, as if another thought had suddenly come to her mind she leaned over the railing and almost whispered, "And, oh, don't ride—sit in the coach with—er—us." She laughed and disappeared into her room.

"Captain Bonaparte," De Langiac called. "I have not come here to dispute the young lady's very evident charms," the messenger stated in no undecided tones, "but to give you the word of Napoleon, and that is that you leave with us at once to attend the fete, arranged in your honor by the former Minister Monroe, after which we are to set sail. Your marriage to the Princess Friedericka of Wurtemberg, Napoleon considers imperative to the welfare of France."

"Of France—of France—always of France," Jerome sighed. "His letters," De Langiac extended the heavily sealed envelopes and bowed.

"Leave me, gentlemen. I must be alone," he took the letters and waved his companions away. They withdrew to the further end of the porch where they stood conversing.

"Alone," Jerome talked to himself, pacing aimlessly up and down the long porch. "Nothing should be too great or too sacred to give up," he repeated Betsy's words softly. "If a voice in your heart should whisper: It is for France." He sighed again, and disappeared into the hotel, leaving behind the activities of preparation for the journey to Baltimore; the stable boys busily grooming the Patterson bays; the trunks already piling up about the pillars; the lunches being packed in the great wicker baskets, with the long-necked bottles of wine protruding nosily out of their containers.

Presently Betsy appeared on the porch looking anxiously about the garden. Her long skirt of soft yellow satin left a little train of gold in her wake. Soft satin sleeves half covering her hands that held a tiny travelling case of ponyskin, peeped out from beneath the long green scarf that fell in diaphanous folds to below her knees. The green hat with its long, scuttle-like front was caught and held by the green ribbons tied beneath her chin, and trimmed with small white ostrich tips.

"Monsieur La—" her soft call was interrupted by the appearance of Sir Harry, and she quickly changed her words.

"No don't be mocking me, Miss Betsy," Sir Harry pleaded, "as you always do. Now that you are going away, be kind. Tell me you'll be carrying some thought of this poor lad with you to Baltimore."

"Glory be to God, and me heart's full of lads already," Betsy court-teased.

"Sure, Betsy, you are a heart's disease," he shook his dark head. "But is there any hope for me, Betsy?"

"Come to Baltimore—and I'll see," Betsy promised. "Oh, Mr. Clay!" She waved to the figure that was hurrying across the green.

"There, Harry, stop your growling." She swiftly threw the green veil that was to have decorated her hat to the Irishman. "There is the color of your native land—and see how ugly it is. It stands for the green-eyed monster," she called after her erstwhile suitor who hurried off with his prize.

"Ah, Miss Betsy, how cruel you are," Henry Clay called as he came up the path, a little out of breath. "How many hearts you are carrying away with you." He bowed gallantly.

"I? Why, Mr. Clay," Betsy returned innocently. "Do you think for a moment that my foolery hurts such boys as Sir Harry and the others? Heavens! Why man doesn't grow a heart—until he is thirty-five or forty."

"Yes, well—a—myself, have always been so absorbed in political life that until recently I never seemed to have time to be—or—that is—for the lighter side of life," Clay stuttered and stammered like a veritable school-boy making his first confession of love. "But Miss Betsy, I—this summer has awakened me to the fact that, as you say—a man develops a heart—after thirty-five—and—that heavy, Madam—I—have the honor to lay at your feet." He bowed low. "Is there any hope for me, Miss Betsy?"

"Hope? Well, come to Baltimore, and I'll see," Betsy promised. Clay took the girl's hand and bent over it, kissing the pink tipped fingers. "Thank you," he said simply, and retreated into the safe privacy of the hotel to nurse his feelings.

"Law! I'm a wretch," Betsy giggled, "but I'm so soft-hearted I can't bear to refuse them outright." "So you're really going—so soon?" Calhoun came from the hotel, questioning anxiously.

"Yes, just as I—we—we—were getting to be friends," Betsy sighed and looked shyly down at the ground.

SCOTT SEEKING TO RE-ESTABLISH PRESTIGE OF ENGLISH HEAVYWEIGHT DEBUT

RECENTLY KNOCKED OUT BY NONE TOO DURABLE DANE.

KNUTE HANSEN

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 11.—Phil Shuffling Scott, who abandoned the pursuit of London fires to drape the great American cauliflower canvas, will be examined concerning his shock-absorbing qualities tonight when he meets the ungainly, 220-pound macaroni man, Roberto Roberti from Italy.

A bout with Jack Sharkey, the revitalized Lithuanian, awaits the winner of this ten round engagement in Madison Square Garden.

Scott has been seeking to re-establish the prestige of his English heavyweight debut and his knock-out at the hands of the none too durable Dane, Knute Hansen.

Since that lametable beginning, the former fire laddie has not been permanently perpendicular during his fights, but he has acquired a trick of bouncing from the canvas before even a fairly agile time-keeper can arrive at the count of ten.

Being quite a boxer, Scott can outpoint most second raters who do not tack him to the canvas promptly and permanently. It is not believed that big Roberti can do the trick.

Roberti has been coming steadily to the fore over the prostrate bodies of ham-and-beaners. A giant of a man, standing some six feet four and weighing his 220 on the hoof, he is possessed of a tremendous right hand punch.

There is this to be remembered in connection with Scott. He has two victories over Tom Heeney to his credit. Yet Tex Rickard tells us that Heeney is the outstanding heavyweight challenger of the year, a worthy opponent for Gene Tunney.

In addition to Scott, the English will be Rudi Wagner, the German will be Rudi Wagner, the German heavyweight, boxing Big Boy Peterson, the Swede, and Pierre Charles, the Belgian, versus Arturo De Kuh, a countryman of Roberti.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1923, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

The beautiful Betsy Patterson is staying with her father at Sweet Springs Inn. Surrounded by admirers she is secretly attracted to her French tutor, the handsome La Vert. Two French officers arrive and salute La Vert deferentially as the runaway Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon. They agree to give him another hour in cognito. He finds Betsy thrilled at the prospect of entertaining Jerome Bonaparte in Baltimore. She chides him for his apparent lack of interest in the distinguished Frenchman and speculates on her happy lot were she wedded to this Bonaparte whom she is so soon to meet.

"But if you were wedded to sorrow and poverty and care, your ambition thus struck dead, would strike dead your love, is it not so, Mamselle?" Jerome parried craftily.

"Do you think me so unworthy?" Betsy demanded haughtily. "You men think we women have no greater ambition than that of vanity. But our ambition is of the heart—to build for one we love happiness beyond the reach of Fate." She walked to the window and stood looking out across the garden and into the woods beyond. "Oh," she turned her head to look at her tutor. "I think a woman's ambition should rise to its bravest height, even at the very threshold of death itself, if the voice of him she loves should say to her: 'You feared not to walk to the grave and to the heaven by my side."

"Oh, Betsy!" Jerome had crossed the room quickly and knelt before the figure of this very serious goddess, kissing her hand as humbly as any slave. "For that me such high words were said." He looked up at her, pleading.

"There," Betsy laughed and pulled her hand away. "You've gone the way of all the tutors, after all your promises to father."

"Ah, Betsy—Betsy!" In his eagerness Jerome did not notice the three figures that stood grouped in the garden looking up at the balcony and through the open window where Jerome knelt before the lady of his heart.

But Betsy had seen them, and now, covered with confusion, she retreated further into the room. "Oh, Law!" she exclaimed, directing Jerome's attention to the witnesses. "I know they saw us."

Jerome got up hastily as he recognized in the figures of St. Pierre, Dufresne, and a French messenger—probably De Langiac, he told himself.

"I must go and help Aunt Ellen pack," Betsy flung the words back over her shoulder as she hurried out the door and down the hall before Jerome could stop her.

Captain Bonaparte decided that he had best face the accusations that he felt were forthcoming, and he started briskly out into the hall and down the steps that led to the garden. As he appeared the three men smiled, and De Langiac greeted him with a salute.

"I am glad to find you in such a position," De Langiac smiled. "It indicated remorse—if not repentance."

"Aye, repentance for the blackguard's part, sir, played here," Jerome spoke sadly. "Remorse that I had not the courage to undeceive her and to endure her just contempt."

"Monsieur La Vert!" The golden tones of Betsy floated down from the balcony, and caused Jerome to stop abruptly. He looked up to see the girl leaning over the railing and beckoning to him. He motioned for the three men to withdraw.

"If you like," Betsy called quietly as he drew near in answer to her summons, "you may come to Baltimore with us. You'd better hurry and pack." She smiled and turned to go, and then, as if another thought had suddenly come to her mind she leaned over the railing and almost whispered, "And, oh, don't ride—sit in the coach with—er—us." She laughed and disappeared into her room.

"Captain Bonaparte," De Langiac called. "I have not come here to dispute the young lady's very evident charms," the messenger stated in no undecided tones, "but to give you the word of Napoleon, and that is that you leave with us at once to attend the fete, arranged in your honor by the former Minister Monroe, after which we are to get sail. Your marriage to the Princess Friedericka of Wurttemberg, Napoleon considers imperative to the welfare of France."

"Of France—of France—always of France," Jerome sighed. "His letters," De Langiac extended the heavily sealed envelopes and bowed.

"Leave me, gentlemen, I must be alone," he took the letters and waved his companions away. They withdrew to the further end of the porch where they stood conversing.

"Alone," Jerome talked to himself, pacing aimlessly up and down the long porch. "Nothing should be too great or too sacred to give up," he repeated Betsy's words softly. "If a voice in your heart should whisper: 'It is for France.' He sighed again, and disappeared into the hotel, leaving behind the activities of preparation for the journey to Baltimore; the stable boys busily grooming the Patterson bays; the trunks already piling up about the pillars; the lunches being packed in the great wicker baskets, with the long-necked bottles of wine protruding noisily out of their containers.

Presently Betsy appeared on the porch looking anxiously about the garden. Her long skirt of soft yellow satin left a little train of gold in her wake. Soft satin sleeves half covering her hands that held a tiny travelling case of pony-skin, peeped out from beneath the long green scarf that fell in diaphanous folds to below her knees. The green hat with its long, scuffle-like front was caught and held by the green ribbons tied beneath her chin, and trimmed with small white ostrich tips.

"Monsieur La—" her soft call was interrupted by the appearance of Sir Harry, and she quickly changed her words.

"No don't be mocking me, Miss Betsy," Sir Harry pleaded, "as you always do. Now that you are going away, be kind. Tell me you'll be carrying some thought of this poor lad with you to Baltimore."

"Glory be to God, and me heart's full of lads already," Betsy courted.

"Sure, Betsy, you are a heart's disease," he shook his dark head. "But is there any hope for me, Betsy?"

"Come to Baltimore—and I'll see," Betsy promised. "Oh, Mr. Clay!" She waved to the figure that was hurrying across the green.

"There, Harry, stop your growling!" She swiftly threw the green veil that was to have decorated her hat to the Irishman. "There is the color of your native land—and see how ugly it is. It stands for the green-eyed monster," she called after her erstwhile suitor who hurried off with his prize.
